1. ЦЕЛЬ ОСВОЕНИЯ ДИСЦИПЛИНЫ

Целью освоения дисциплины Иностранный язык в профессиональной деятельности (английский) является формирование коммуникативной языковой компетенции для подготовки к осуществлению деятельности в различных сферах экономики, где рабочим языком является иностранный.

В результате изучения дисциплины Иностранный язык в профессиональной деятельности, обучающийся должен:

Уметь:

- общаться (устно и письменно) на иностранном языке на профессиональные и повседневные темы;
- понимать общий смысл четко произнесенных высказываний на известные темы (профессиональные и бытовые), понимать тексты на базовые профессиональные темы;
- участвовать в диалогах на знакомые общие и профессиональные темы;
- строить простые высказывания о себе и о своей профессиональной деятельности;
- писать простые связные сообщения на знакомые или интересующие

профессиональные темы

- переводить (со словарем) иностранные тексты профессиональной направленности;

Знать:

- лексический (1200 - 1400 лексических единиц) и грамматический минимум, относящийся к описанию предметов, средств и процессов профессиональной деятельности и необходимый для чтения и перевода (со словарем) иностранных текстов профессиональной направленности;

- правила построения простых и сложных предложений на профессиональные темы;
- основные общеупотребительные глаголы (бытовая и профессиональная лексика);
- правила чтения текстов профессиональной направленности.
- особенности произношения.

Результатом освоения дисциплины, в соответствии с рабочей программой воспитания, является формирование у обучающихся следующих личностных результатов обучения:

ЛР 7. Осознающий и деятельно выражающий приоритетную ценность каждой человеческой жизни, уважающий достоинство личности каждого человека, собственную и чужую уникальность, свободу мировоззренческого выбора, самоопределения. Проявляющий бережливое и чуткое отношение к религиозной принадлежности каждого человека, предупредительный в отношении выражения прав и законных интересов других людей.

ЛР 8. Проявляющий и демонстрирующий уважение законных интересов

и прав представителей различных этнокультурных, социальных, конфессиональных групп в российском обществе; национального достоинства, религиозных убеждений с учётом соблюдения необходимости обеспечения конституционных прав и свобод граждан. Понимающий и деятельно выражающий ценность межрелигиозного и межнационального согласия людей, граждан, народов в России. Выражающий сопричастность к преумножению и трансляции культурных традиций и ценностей многонационального российского государства, включенный в общественные инициативы, направленные на их сохранение.

ЛР 13. Соблюдающий в своей профессиональной деятельности этические принципы: честности, независимости, профессионального скептицизма, противодействия коррупции и экстремизму, обладающий системным мышлением и умением принимать решение в условиях риска и неопределенности.

ОПИСАНИЕ ШКАЛ ОЦЕНИВАНИЯ

Показатель оценки освоения ООП формируется на основе объединения текущей и промежуточной аттестации обучающегося.

Показатель рейтинга по каждой дисциплине выражается в процентах, который показывает уровень подготовки студента.

Текущая аттестация. Используется 5-балльная система оценивания. Оценка работы студента в течении семестра осуществляется преподавателем в соответствии с разработанной им системой оценки учебных достижений в процессе обучения по данной дисциплине.

В рабочих программах дисциплин (предметов) и практик закреплены виды текущей аттестации, планируемые результаты контрольных мероприятий и критерии оценки учебных достижений.

В течение семестра преподавателем проводится не менее 3-х контрольных мероприятий, по оценке деятельности студента.

Промежуточная аттестация. Используется 5-балльная система оценивания. Оценка работы студента по окончанию дисциплины (части дисциплины) осуществляется преподавателем в соответствии с разработанной им системой оценки достижений студента в процессе обучения по данной дисциплине. Промежуточная аттестация также проводится по окончанию формирования компетенций.

Показатель оценки	По 5-балльной системе	Характеристика показателя
100% - 85%	отлично	обладают теоретическими знаниями в полном объеме, понимают, самостоятельно умеют применять, исследовать, идентифицировать, анализировать, систематизировать, распределять по категориям, рассчитать показатели, классифицировать, разрабатывать модели, алгоритмизировать, управлять, организовать, планировать процессы исследования, осуществлять оценку результатов на высоком уровне
84% - 70%	хорошо	обладают теоретическими знаниями в полном объеме, понимают, самостоятельно умеют применять, исследовать, идентифицировать, анализировать, систематизировать, распределять по категориям, рассчитать показатели, классифицировать, разрабатывать модели, алгоритмизировать, управлять, организовать, планировать процессы исследования, осуществлять оценку результатов.  Могут быть допущены недочеты, исправленные студентом самостоятельно в процессе работы (ответа и т.д.)
69% - 50%	удовлетворительно	обладают общими теоретическими знаниями, умеют применять, исследовать, идентифицировать, анализировать, систематизировать, распределять по категориям, рассчитать показатели, классифицировать, разрабатывать модели, алгоритмизировать, управлять, организовать, планировать процессы исследования, осуществлять оценку результатов на среднем уровне. Допускаются ошибки, которые студент затрудняется исправить самостоятельно.
49 % и менее	неудовлетворительно	обладают не полным объемом общих теоретическими знаниями, не умеют самостоятельно применять, исследовать, идентифицировать, анализировать, систематизировать, распределять по категориям, рассчитать показатели, классифицировать, разрабатывать модели, алгоритмизировать, управлять, организовать, планировать процессы исследования, осуществлять оценку результатов. Не сформированы умения и навыки для решения профессиональных задач
100% - 50%	зачтено	характеристика показателя соответствует «отлично», «хорошо», «удовлетворительно»
49 % и менее	не зачтено	характеристика показателя соответствует «неудовлетворительно»

8. ОСОБЕННОСТИ ОРГАНИЗАЦИИ ОБРАЗОВАТЕЛЬНОГО ПРОЦЕССА ПО ДИСЦИПЛИНЕ ДЛЯ ЛИЦ С ОГРАНИЧЕННЫМИ ВОЗМОЖНОСТЯМИ ЗДОРОВЬЯ

По заявлению студента

В целях доступности освоения программы для лиц с ограниченными возможностями здоровья при необходимости кафедра обеспечивает следующие условия:

- особый порядок освоения дисциплины, с учетом состояния их здоровья;
- электронные образовательные ресурсы по дисциплине в формах, адаптированных к ограничениям их здоровья;
- изучение дисциплины по индивидуальному учебному плану (вне зависимости от формы обучения);

Пример текста

The computer is the most important thing in our lives. Some people say that they have never used a computer, but they probably use computers every day - they just do not realize it. There are computers in so many things: cars, televisions, radios, washing machines, etc. The word 'computer' used to mean a person, not a machine. In the nineteenth century, the people who did the calculations and wrote the books were called computers. Nowadays, software programmers have even 'taught' computers to do many different things which need imagination, e.g. write music, play chess, etc. The rapid development of modern technology has brought us unprecedented changes in the world.

Modern technology makes life convenient. It changed our lifestyle and the way we live. With modern technology we can work harder, longer and we can carry on working when we get home. The Internet is a great way for people all over the world to share their information and ideas. Before the Internet, information about the world came from places like newspapers, TV programs, and books. The companies that made the newspapers, books, and programs controlled the information that people could get. Of course, those companies are still very powerful, but the Internet is getting more and more powerful, and nobody controls it.

Чтение и письменный перевод оригинального текста (объемом 1200-1400 п.зн. за 1 академ. час с использованием словаря)

Пример текста

Money is whatever generally acceptable in order to perform functions of paying for goods and services. In the past it took the form of a variety of commodities, though precious metals tended to be favoured because of a number of convenient physical characteristics, above all the fact that they are limited in supply. With the development of banks, paper currency has come to succeed precious metals as the medium of exchange, initially in the form of gold receipts, and then as central bank notes, backed by the authority of government. Nowadays bank deposits are generally accepted as money, and form the greater part of the money supply. Although anything can serve as money, the material of it should possess some important qualities: portability, durability, uniformity, divisibility (to make a change), recognizability.

Today money consists of coins, paper currency, and transaction account deposits. Now we are beginning to make electronic transfers of money through electronic funds transfer systems (EFT). EFT systems range from Automated Teller machines (ATM) or cash dispensers and to 'virtual money' (WEB money) on the Internet. The banking system of Great Britain consists of a number of institutions, with the Bank of England playing a crucial role in regulating the supply of money and influencing interest rates, overseeing the operations of commercial banks. The Bank of England also manages the National Debt. According to the functions they perform banks may be divided into the following groups: commercial banks, savings banks, investment banks, trust companies. Commercial banks fall into two groups, 'clearing' and 'secondary' banks. In common with other commercial institutions, they operate by acting as financial intermediaries, borrowing money in order to re-lend it, which they are able to do profitably because of their specialised knowledge of financial markets.

Контрольная работа № 7

Read the text

I had just graduated with a BA in Management and I was sure I could get my career started. At the moment I was working as a bartender and I was making good money but I felt it was time to get a 'real job'. I was going to find one in my field of study.

So I started to look for jobs. I looked through the positions offered in local newspapers and used all the web-based job boards. I applied for vacancies that seemed ideal for me.

I was pleased when the first CVs I submitted led to interviews. I was feeling good about the whole process, confident in my interview skills and thought that it would be a short time before I got a job. Those interviews gave way to polite phone calls informing me that they had 'hired another candidate with more experience'.

I visited our local job centre, consulted with a career adviser and networked with friends who could know of open positions. I started applying for any jobs in management. It was then that my big break came - I was invited back for a second interview. At this point I was sure I had finally succeeded. Unfortunately, it was a rejection just like all the rest. I had been looking for a job for two months and I was close to losing my confidence.

Then I received a very unexpected phone call from a nonprofit, which I had applied long before. They asked me to come in for an interview. I took that interview and they offered me a job as an Office Manager. I wasn't positive that this was the opportunity I was looking for but I decided to accept the job.

Today it has been two years since I took that job. I am still with the nonprofit organization and it has opened doors for me that I never thought possible. I have learned a lot about the nonprofit industry, about the world, and about myself. I have moved up quickly and gained the respect of my co-workers. I am in a good place and feel very fortunate.

Match the following words and word combinations with their definitions.

1) job-hunting	a) a person concerned with the recruiting, training, and welfare of employees
2) job centre	b) the activity of meeting and talking to people in order to exchange information about work and interests

Buckingham Palace

The original building was constructed as a country house in 1705 by the duke of Buckingham, John Sheffield. King George III bought the house in 1761 for his wife and had it altered by William Chambers. In 1826, King George IV asked famed architect John Nash to expand the house - then known as Buckingham House - into a palace. Meanwhile St. James's Palace was still the principal palace used by the royals for ceremonies and receptions.

The palace was expanded in 1850 with a new east wing. The wing added a large number of rooms to the palace, including an expansive forty meter (131 ft) long ballroom. The monumental facade of the east wing was built in 1913 by Aston Webb. It is this facade, facing the Mall and St James's Park, which is now known by most people.

A part of the palace is still used by the Royal family. A flag is hoisted each time the Queen is in the Palace. The palace is not only home to the royal family; there are also a number of staff members living here. The palace has about six hundred rooms, including a throne room, a ballroom, picture gallery and even a swimming pool. Some of these rooms can be visited during a couple of months in the summer - when the Royal Family is not in the palace. Another interesting part of the palace that is open to visitors is the Queen's Gallery, where works of art from the royal collection are on display. The palace's stables, the Royal Mews, can also be visited. Here you'll find a number of royal horse-drawn carriages.

Harrods

The history of this famous luxury store goes back to 1849 when Charles Henry Harrod opened a grocery at Brompton Road in Knightsbridge, at the time a small village just outside London. Just two years later, the Great Exhibition of 1851 brought many visitors to the area. Charles Harrod's son (also named Charles) took over and quickly expanded the store, at the time known as 'Harrods Stores'. The department store became well known for its high quality products and excellent personalized service. In 1894 Harrods was taken over by Richard Burbidge who had the store completely rebuilt. He also installed London's first escalator, in 1898.

Now, Harrods is one of the world's most famous stores and one of London's tourist attractions thanks to the wide assortment of luxury goods that are on display in a magnificently decorated building.

The enormous array of products is particularly impressive. The company's motto - engraved on the building's pediment - is Omnia, Omnibus, Ubique (Everything, for everyone, everywhere). Harrods used to be known as the store where anything you could think of was for sale. While this may not be the case anymore, the assortment is still enormous. You can purchase anything from historic eighteenth-century dinner plates or exquisite caviar to giant teddy bears. It is best to take your time for a visit to the large store, which covers an area of about 80,000 sq m spread out over seven floors. Floor plans are available near the entrances.

30 St Mary Axe, better known by its nickname Gherkin, is one of the most eye-catching buildings in London and it stands out prominently in the city's skyline. The Gherkin is one of several modern buildings that have been built over the years in a historic area of London.

Construction of the Gherkin was commissioned by Swiss Re, a reinsurance company. The 41-story skyscraper was built in 2004 after a modern glass and steel design by the architectural firm of Foster and Partners. The Gherkin, London

The tower was built in the heart of London's financial center at the site of the 1903 Baltic Exchange Building which had been damaged by a terrorist attack in 1992. The construction of a glittering high-tech building in the middle of a relatively low-rise area with plenty of historic buildings and narrow medieval streets set off a new debate about the need for tall buildings in the City of London. But even as many new skyscrapers are now built in Canary Wharf - well outside the city's historic center - the Gherkin has acted as a catalyst for the growing cluster of high-rises in the City.

The cigar-shaped structure has a steel frame with circular floor plans and a glass facade with diamond-shaped panels. The swirling striped pattern visible on the exterior is the result of the building's energy-saving system which allows the air to flow up through spiraling wells.

The top of the tower, where visitors find an open hall covered by a glass conical dome is even more spectacular. From here you have great views over the city. Unfortunately the building is not open to the public.

Millennium Dome (O2), London

In 1994, the Chairman of what would later become the New Millennium Experience Company suggested a national exhibition to be held as part of the country's millennium celebrations. The project, to be funded mainly by the National Lottery, was revised when Tony Blair became the new Prime Minister in 1997. He declared that the exhibition, to be held in Greenwich, would open a window on the future. The focus would be on entertainment and education (also dubbed 'edutainment'). This resulted in fourteen themed zones, including Faith, Talk, Mind, Rest, Home Planet, Body and Learning.

The project was controversial from the start. The Millennium Dome, a large domed structure that was built on the meridian in Greenwich to house the exhibition had an estimated cost of £750 million and was disliked by many Londoners, who did not see it as a proper symbol for their city.

Due to the focus on education and the high entrance fee, the Dome did not attract as many visitors as originally forecasted: a total of seven million people visited the exposition, The Millennium Dome, now O2, in London compared to the original estimate of twelve million visitors. Even with each of the separate themes in the Dome sponsored by major corporations, the project had a serious budget deficit. The millennium exhibition ran until the end of 2000.

In 2005 the Millennium Dome was renamed O2, after the mobile phone company. At the same time it was converted into a multifunctional entertainment complex. The arena now hosts many different events, including exhibitions and concerts. At its center is a large concert hall with a capacity of 20,000 people. Several other halls include areas for more intimate concerts, cinemas and exhibitions.

Задание 1. Чтение и перевод оригинального текста (за 1 академ. час с использованием словаря)

The Shard is a modern glass skyscraper in London. At the time of its completion in 2012 it was Europe's tallest building. The observatory on the 72nd floor offers some spectacular 360 degree views of the city.

The skyscraper is situated in the London Bridge Quarter in Southwark, a neighborhood along the south bank of the river Thames. It is right near the heart of London and only the river separates it from the City of London. The area is full of history: a bridge was built here by the Romans around 50 AD and in 1836 London's first railway station opened here.

The idea to build a supertall skyscraper in the London Bridge Quarter was first suggested at the end of the twentieth century. The site seemed ideal: it is only a couple minutes' walk from London's financial center across the London Bridge and the site is right smack near the London Bridge Station, a transport hub connected to both the railway network and the underground.

Plans for the new skyscraper were initially drawn up by the architectural firm of Broadway Malyan, and called for a circular 365 meters tall tower. These plans were soon scaled back and a new design was submitted, this time from the hands of the Italian architect Renzo Piano. The renowned architect designed a glass pyramid-shaped structure with a height of just over three hundred meters.

When it was completed, the Shard held the title of Europe's tallest skyscraper with a height of almost 310 meters (1016 ft). The Shard towers over the neighborhood and is visible from afar. The iconic skyscraper looks particularly spectacular at night when seen from across the river.

All your life - from cradle to grave - you will run up against the brutal truths of economics. As a voter, you will make decisions on issues - on the government budget, regulating industries, taxes and foreign trade - that cannot be understood until you have mastered the rudiments of this subject.

Choosing your life occupation is the most important economic decision you will make. Your future depends not only on your own abilities but also upon how economic forces affect your wages. Of course, studying economics cannot make you a genius. Economics is exciting and important. Anyone who thinks otherwise has failed to realize that economic ideas have moved people to rebellion, and nations to war.

The great problems that surround us today-among them international conflict, unemployment, inflation, poverty, discrimination, and environmental pollution - have economic roots. Even the small problems – impossibility to find a parking space, the high price of goods and products in our stores- are economic in nature.

Notice that "scarcity" in the economic sense doesn't refer directly to quantity of a resource. The earth has a great deal of land, yet most of the earth land is scarce because it has alternative uses. If land is used for a college campus, that same land isn't available for a shopping mall or a park. All societies confront the problem of scarcity, which implies the existence of alternatives; choices must be made among those alternatives. The ways in which the choices are made, are determined by a society's laws, customs and practices. These constitute a society's economic system.

The economy comprises millions of people and thousands of firms as well as the government and local authorities, all taking decisions about prices and wages, what to buy, sell, produce, export, import and many other matters. All these organizations and the decisions they take play a prominent part in shaping the business environment in which firms exist and operate.

The economy is complicated and difficult to control and predict, but it is certainly important to all businesses. You should be aware that there are times when businesses and individuals have plenty of funds to spend and there are times when they have to cut back on their spending. This can have enormous implications for business as a whole. When the economy is enjoying a boom, firms experience high sales and general prosperity. At such times, unemployment is low and many firms will be investing funds to enable them to produce more. They do this because consumers have plenty of money to spend and firms expect high sales. It naturally follows that the state of the economy is a major factor in the success of firms. However, during periods when people have less to spend many firms face hard times as their sales fall. Thus, the economic environment alters as the economy moves into a recession. At that time, total spending declines as income falls and unemployment rises. Consumers will purchase cheaper items and cut expenditure on luxury items such as televisions and cars.

Factors of production

Natural Resources are items provided by nature that can be used to produce goods and to provide services are called natural resources. Natural resources are found in/or on the earth or in the earth's atmosphere.

Human Resources involve anyone who works. Any human effort that is exerted in production process is classified as a human resource. The effort can be either physical or intellectual.

Capital Resources are the money and capital goods that are used to produce consumer products. Capital goods include the buildings, structures, machinery, and tools that are used in the production process. Department stores, factories, industrial machinery, dams, ports, wrenches, hammers, and surgical scalpels are all examples of capital goods.

Economists make an important distinction between capital goods and consumer goods. Capital goods are the manufactured resources that are used in producing finished products. Consumer goods are the finished products – the goods and services that consumers buy.

Technology is the use of science to create new products or more efficient ways to produce products. Technology makes the other factors of production – natural, human, and capital resources – more productive. Technological advances in the computer industry, for example, have increased efficiency in the workplace.

The risk-taking and organizational abilities involved in starting a new business or introducing a new product to consumers are called entrepreneurship. The goal of entrepreneurship is to create a new mix of the other factors of production and thereby create something of value. The entrepreneur is a person who attempts to start a new business or introduce a new product.

Задание 1. Чтение и перевод оригинального текста (за 1 академ. час с использованием словаря)

The study of the choices people make in an effort to satisfy their wants and needs is called economics. Wants and needs refer to people's desires to consume certain goods and services. In economic terms, a good is a physical object that can be purchased. A record, a house, and a car are examples of a good. A service is an action or activity done for others for a fee. Lawyers, plumbers, teachers, and taxicab drivers perform services. The term product is often used to refer to both goods and services.

The people who wish to buy goods and services are called consumers and the goods that they buy are called consumer goods. The people who make the goods and provide services that satisfy consumers' wants and needs are called producers.

Economists generally classify as needs those goods or services that are necessary that are necessary for survival. Food, clothing, and shelter are considered needs. Wants are those goods or services that people consume beyond what is needed for survival.

The need for making choices arises from the problem of scarcity. Scarcity exists because people's wants and needs are greater than the resources available to satisfy them. Thus people must choose how best to use their available resources to satisfy the greatest number of wants and needs.

A resource is anything that people use to make or obtain what they want or need. Resources that can be used to produce goods and services are called factors of production.

Economists usually divide these factors of production into three categories: (1) natural resources, (2) human resources, (3) capital resources. Today many economists have added technology and entrepreneurship to this list.

Not surprisingly, the production processes and time required to make an Apple iPad and a gallon of gasoline are different. Production processes use either an analytic or synthetic system; time requirements call for either a continuous or an intermittent process.

An analytic production system reduces a raw material to its component parts in order to extract one or more marketable products. Petroleum refining breaks down crude oil into several marketable products, including gasoline, heating oil, and aviation fuel. When corn is processed, the resulting marketable food products include animal feed and corn sweetener.

A synthetic production system is the reverse of an analytic system. It combines a number of raw materials or parts or transforms raw materials to produce finished products. Canon's assembly line produces a camera by assembling various parts such as a shutter or a lens cap. Other synthetic production systems make drugs, chemicals, computer chips, and canned soup.

A continuous production process generates finished products over a lengthy period of time. The steel industry provides a classic example. Its blast furnaces never completely shut down except for malfunctions. A shutdown can damage sensitive equipment, with extremely costly results.

An intermittent production process generates products in short production runs, shutting down machines frequently or changing their configurations to produce different products. Most services result from intermittent production systems. For instance, accountants, plumbers, and dentists traditionally have not attempted to standardize their services because each service provider confronts different problems that require individual approaches.

A growing number of manufacturers have freed workers from boring, sometimes dangerous jobs by replacing them with robots. A robot is a reprogrammable machine capable of performing a variety of tasks that require the repeated manipulation of materials and tools. Robots can repeat the same tasks many times without varying their movements. Many factories use robots today to stack their products on pallets and shrink-wrap them for shipping.

Historically, robots were most common in automotive and electronics manufacturing, but growing numbers of industries are adding robots to production lines as improvements in technology make them less expensive and more useful. Firms operate many different types of robots. The simplest kind, a pick-and-place robot, moves in only two or three directions as it picks up something from one spot and places it in another.

So-called field robots assist people in nonmanufacturing, often hazardous, environments such as nuclear power plants, the international space station, and even battlefields. Police use robots to remotely dispose of suspected bombs. However, the same technology can be used in factories. Using vision systems, infrared sensors, and bumpers on mobile platforms, robots can automatically move parts or finished goods from one place to another, while either following or avoiding people, whichever is necessary to do the job. For instance, machine vision systems are being used more frequently for complex applications such as quality assurance in the manufacturing of medical devices.

The advancements in machine vision components like cameras, illumination systems, and processors have greatly improved their capabilities.

What comes to mind when you hear the word business? Do you think of big corporations like ExxonMobil or Target? Or does the local bakery or shoe store pop into your mind? Maybe you recall your first summer job. The term business is a broad, all-inclusive term that can be applied to many kinds of enterprises. Businesses provide the bulk of employment opportunities, as well as the products that people enjoy. Business consists of all profit-seeking activities and enterprises that provide goods and services necessary to an economic system.

Some businesses produce tangible goods, such as automobiles, breakfast cereals, and digital music players; others provide services such as insurance, hair styling, and entertainment ranging from Six Flags theme parks and sports events to concerts. Business drives the economic pulse of a nation. It provides the means through which its citizens' standard of living improves.

At the heart of every business endeavor is an exchange between a buyer and a seller. A buyer recognizes a need for a good or service and trades money with a seller to obtain that product. The seller participates in the process in hopes of gaining profits—a main ingredient in accomplishing the goals necessary for continuous improvement in the standard of living. Profits represent rewards for businesspeople who take the risks involved in blending people, technology, and information to create and market want-satisfying goods and services. In contrast, accountants think of profits as the difference between a firm's revenues and the expenses it incurs in generating these revenues.

The British Isles lie off the north-west coast of continental Europe. They are made up of Great Britain and Ireland. In Britain the higher lands are found in the north and west. There the rocks are old and hard, and the wild plateau areas of the Highlands of Scotland, the Southern Uplands of Scotland, the Lake District, the Apennines Chain, the Welsh mountains, the moors of Cornwall and Devon and the Irish mountains have thin infertile soil.

Newer types of rock are found on the flanks of the Apennines, slopes of the Welsh mountains, the Midland Plain of England and the Central Lowlands of Scotland. Here minerals, particularly coal and iron are found, and manufacturing regions have developed.

Lowland Britain is fertile, with good arable land and pastures. Highland Britain has large areas of poor soil and is sparsely populated.

The Western coasts are rocky and deeply indented, but in the southeast the younger, softer rocks have weathered into low coasts, and the shallow seas (the North Sea and the English Channel) flow over submerged plains which long ago joined Britain to the rest of Europe. This continental shelf is the feeding ground for a great variety of fish. Owing to the various bays and inlets no point of the British Isles is more than seventy-five miles from tidal waters.

Libraries full of books have been written on the education system in Britain, but recently it has been changing considerably. This is roughly how it works.

Compulsory education begins at 5, and children attend primary school until they are 11. Normally the primary school is divided into Infants (5 - 7) and Juniors (7 - 11). At the age of 11 most children go to a comprehensive school, where they stay until they are 16. Some parents, who do not want their children to go to a comprehensive, pay to send their children to a private school. The most expensive and prestigious private schools are actually called public schools – but they are private. At the age of 16 people take examinations. Most take General Certificate of Education (G.C.E.). Ordinary Levels – normally called just “O” Levels. People take “O” Levels in as many subjects as they want to; some take just one or two, others take as many as nine or ten.

If you get good “O” Level results, you can stay on at school until you are 18, in the sixth form (notice that in Britain you start in the First form and finish in the Sixth). Here you prepare for Advanced Level Exams (“A” Levels). Three good “A” Level passes mean you have a chance of going on to university – though this is not automatic. British universities operate a closed numbers system and the number of people who can study there is strictly controlled. Other types of further education are offered at polytechnics and colleges of higher education. Polytechnics offer the chance to study subjects in a more practical way, and many colleges of higher education specialize in teacher training. What is it like, being a student at Oxford? Like all British universities, Oxford is a state university, not a private one.

Sebastian: I am currently in my fifth year of school at the University of Oregon (The U of O). I am following two careers, business and economics. I arrived to Oregon in 2001 to finish my last year of high school. I applied to the U of O, and voila! I got in and was really happy to stay in Oregon. I liked the people and the scenery because it was quite different from home. I also chose the U of O, because I knew that it had really good financial aid programs for international students. I applied to many scholarships before I started school, and luckily I was awarded financial aid during my first year for academic reasons, and from then on it just got better. In my second year I got accepted to be part of the International Cultural Service Program, where I show different aspects of Acuatorian culture to different groups of people in the surrounding community or within the University, and in exchange of this I get financial aid.

The U of O has been a great place to meet new people. At the beginning I was really scared because I did not know anyone and had a language barrier in front of me to jump over. But that just made the experience even greater. I met wonderful new people, and made solid friendships. I am lucky to say that now I have a friend from each continent in the world, and all that thanks to the U of O.

Camilla: One of the best things about being a student at the U of O is that you can go to basketball games for free. There are other sports events also, American football is huge. Almost every nation has a reputation of some kind. The English are reputed to be cold, reserved, rather haughty people who do not yell in the street, make love in public or change their governments as often as they change their underclothes. They are steady, easy-going, and fond of sport. The fire is the focus of the English home. Even when central heating is installed it is kept so low in the English home that Americans and Russians get chilblains, as the English get nervous headaches from stiffness in theirs.

Most people in England have been slow to adopt rational reforms such the metric system, which came into general use in 1975. They do not want the trouble of adapting themselves to new.

The conservatism may be illustrated by reference of the public attitude to the monarchy. The English are amongst the most amiable people in the world, they can also be very ruthless. They have a genius for compromise but can enforce their idea of compromise on others with surprising efficiency.

They are generous in small matters, but more cautious in big ones. The Scots, the Irish, the Welsh are not the English. They have a lot of in common but all of them have their own national spirit, national pride and they cherish their customs and traditions.

With the population of just under eight million, and stretching more than thirty miles at its broadest point, London is by far the largest city in Europe. It is also far more diffuse than the great cities of the Continent, such as Rome or Paris. The majority of London's sights are situated to the north of the River Thames, which loops through the center of the city from west to east, but there is no single predominant focus of interest, for London has grown not through centralized planning but by process of agglomeration – villages and urban developments that once surrounded the core and now lost within the amorphous mass of Greater London.

Thus London's highlights are widely spread, and visitors should make mastering the public transport system, particularly the Underground (tube), since much of central London is a permanent logjam. An essential investment is a London Transport travelcard, which is available from machines and booths at all tube and train stations and at some newsagents as well. It is valid for the bus, tube and suburban rail networks. One-day travelcards cost £3 for the central zones 1 and 2, rising £3.90 for all six London Transport zones (which includes Heathrow). Weekly travelcards are even more economical, beginning at £14.80. These cards can only be bought by holders of a photocard, which you can get, free of charge, from tube and train station ticket booth on presentation of a passport.

The principal London Transport information office, providing excellent free maps and details of bus and tube services, is at Piccadilly Circus, Euston, King's Cross, Liverpool Street, Oxford circus, St James's Park and Victoria tube stations.

The New Piccadilly Café nestling behind the tourist highway of Piccadilly Circus is this charming, traditional café, famed for its 1950s decor. Little has altered in this much-loved Soho institution since it first opened its doors half a century ago - including the menu! Stepping inside the New Piccadilly café is like stepping back in time - you half expect to find smoking beat poets in the corner. The café retains almost all of its original features, complete with swiveling (вращающиеся) chairs, old mirrors, authentic 50s cups and cutlery. The café's bill of fare is hand-written on to this vintage, horseshoe-shaped menu board. The menu consists of no-nonsense, traditional meals like Sausage, Egg and Chips, Mixed Grill and Chips, Spaghetti Bolognese and Risotto Bolognese - all at dirt cheap prices. We ate out in style, and our tasty meal was served up in no time. I enjoyed a lengthy chat with the affable owner who enthusiastically told me about his long association with the café. He's full of fascinating stories about the dark Soho of the 1950s, the local gangsters, the rockers, prostitutes and a time where the streets were run by Italians, Greeks, Jews, Maltese, Irish and 'Budapest street rats'. Sadly, the café was very quiet when we visited, apart from a few hipsters (неформалы) enjoying a wholesome cheap meal and the unique Soho ambience. "This place used to make me a living. Now it's more like half a living. I'm the like last one on the ship," he says.

India is now the second biggest source of foreign direct investment into the UK. In 2005-06 there was a 110 per cent jump in the scale of investment from India, with projects worth £1.02bn - and that rate has been accelerating since then. However, with the global financial centre of London swallowing the bulk of the investment, relatively little of the growth has filtered through to the south-east. Development agencies are determined to change that though, and have stepped up their efforts to attract Indian companies to the region.

A high-level team from the South East England Development Agency (SEEDA) and UK Trade and Investment visited India last year to promote the region to the ranks of Indian companies that are looking to expand internationally. There are clear opportunities for design and construction companies, potential for logistics groups to help Indian agribusiness companies to expand and a massive potential market for environmental technologies, IT (information technology), pharmaceutical, life sciences and creative companies.

Meanwhile, many of the 50 Indian companies already based in the south-east are flourishing. Wipro Technologies, the IT services group, announced plans to add 500 employees to its 140-staff. As the Thames Valley is the UK's IT hub, Wipro has worked perfectly and the company has expanded in the town, providing IT services to large utility and telecommunications companies. It also regards the UK itself as a growing market.

Ports and resorts in the south-east are failing to meet their economic potential, according to a plan to create more than 110,000 jobs in the region over the next decade.

The South East England Development Agency (SEEDA) has announced its blueprint for lifting the region's competitive performance with a focus on coastal towns, many of which are "in decline".

A new coastal strategy, published alongside the broader draft regional economic strategy, aims to reinvigorate towns stretching from Whitstable in north Kent to Southampton in Hampshire, bringing tens of thousands of people back into work. SEEDA set a target of bringing 110,000 economically inactive people back into the labour market by 2016, of which it said almost half live on the south coast. It plans to raise the number of new workers in the south-east to 250,000 by 2026.

It said raising the performance of the south coast would narrow gaps in economic performance across the region, enabling more people to share in its general prosperity.

SEEDA also announced schemes that it said illustrated the three goals of the regional economic strategy: global competitiveness through world-class infrastructure, smart growth through better productivity, and sustainable prosperity.

What do you think of when you hear the word economics? Money, certainly, and perhaps more complicated things like business, inflation and unemployment. The science of economics studies all of these, but many more things as well. Economics is as old as the human race. It is probably the first art which man acquired. But economics as an academic discipline is relatively new: the first major book on economics "The Wealth of Nations" by Adam Smith was published in 1776. Since that time the subject has developed rapidly and there are now many branches of the subject, such as micro- and macroeconomics, international economics and econometrics as well as many competing schools of thought. Economics is a comprehensive theory of how the society works. There is an economic aspect to almost any topic we care to mention – education, religion, employment, housing, transport, defence, etc. The great classical economist Alfred Marshall defined economics as “the study of man in the everyday business of life”

Russia is a unique emerging market, in the sense that being the nucleus of a former superpower shows more anomalies. On one hand, its exports are primarily resource based, and on the other, it has a pool of technical talent in aerospace, nuclear engineering, and basic sciences. How this peculiar emerging market integrates itself into the world economy over the coming decade is a story as significant in today's world as the reemergence of India and China. The mineral-packed Ural Mountains and the vast oil, gas, coal, and timber reserves of Siberia and the Russian Far East make Russia rich in natural resources. However, most such resources are located in remote and climatically unfavorable areas that are difficult to develop and far from Russian ports. Oil and gas exports continue to be the main source of hard currency. Russia is a leading producer and exporter of minerals, gold, and all major fuels. The Russian fishing industry is the world's fourth-largest, behind Japan, the United States, and China. Natural resources, especially energy, dominate Russian exports. Ninety percent of Russian exports to the United States are minerals or other raw materials.

БИЛЕТ № 23

Задание 1. Чтение и перевод оригинального текста (за 1 академ. час с использованием словаря)

One alternative definition of economics is that it is the study of wealth. By wealth the economists mean all the real physical assets which make up our standard of living – clothes, houses, food, roads, schools, hospitals, cars, oil tankers, etc. One of the primary concerns of economics is to increase the wealth of society, i.e. to increase the stock of economic goods. However, in addition to wealth we must also consider welfare. The concept of welfare is concerned with the whole state of well-being. Thus, it is not only concerned with more economic goods but also with public health, hours of work, with law and order, and so on. It is not difficult to see that it would be possible to increase the level of wealth in society while decreasing its level of welfare. For example, if everyone were to work 50 per cent longer per day the country's wealth would be increased, but it is doubtful if its welfare would, because people would be over-tired, their health would break down, and so on.

Economics is influenced by politics and also by sociology, less obviously, it is influenced by physics, chemistry and the other natural sciences. The last point can be easily demonstrated by mentioning how the developments in nuclear physics have influenced economic life today.

We now assembled the three vital ingredients in our definition – people, scarcity and choice. Thus we could define economics as: The human (social) science which studies the relationship between scarce resources and the various uses which compete for these resources. There are many economic problems which we encounter every day – poverty, inflation, unemployment, etc. It's hard to imagine our life without monetary policy, taxation, banking system, accounting, financial markets. Economics studies all these points. 11 Economists talk about microeconomics and macroeconomics. Microeconomics deals with people and private business. It looks at the economic decisions people make every day. It examines how families manage their household budgets. Macroeconomics, on the other hand, looks at the economy of a country – and of the whole world. Any economist will tell you that microeconomics and macroeconomics are closely connected. All of our daily microeconomic decisions have an effect on the wider world around us. The study of economics is of fundamental importance to the well-being society.

This is rather too vague a definition. Any definition takes account of the guiding idea in economics which is scarcity. Virtually everything is scarce, not just diamonds or oil but also bread and water. How can we say this? The answer is that one only has to look around the world to realize that there are not enough resources to give people all they want. It is not only the very poor who feel deprived, even the relatively well-off seem to want more. Thus, scarcity means that available resources are insufficient to satisfy all wants and needs. We have limited resources, both in rich countries and poor countries. The economics' job is to evaluate the choices that exist for the use of these resources. Thus we have another characteristic of economics: it is concerned with choice. Another aspect of the problem is people themselves. They do not just want more food or clothing, they want particular types of food, specific items of clothing and so on.

Money is whatever generally acceptable in order to perform functions of paying for goods and services. In the past it took the form of a variety of commodities, though precious metals tended to be favoured because of a number of convenient physical characteristics, above all the fact that they are limited in supply. With the development of banks, paper currency has come to succeed precious metals as the medium of exchange, initially in the form of gold receipts, and then as central bank notes, backed by the authority of government. Nowadays bank deposits are generally accepted as money, and form the greater part of the money supply.

Although anything can serve as money, the material of it should possess some important qualities: portability, durability, uniformity, divisibility (to make a change), recognizability.

Today money consists of coins, paper currency, and transaction account deposits. Now we are beginning to make electronic transfers of money through electronic funds transfer systems (EFT). EFT systems range from Automated Teller machines (ATM) or cash dispensers and to 'virtual money' (WEB money ) on the Internet.

The banking system of Great Britain consists of a number of institutions, with the Bank of England playing a crucial role in regulating the supply of money and influencing interest rates, overseeing the operations of commercial banks. The Bank of England also manages the National Debt. According to the functions they perform banks may be divided into the following groups: commercial banks, savings banks, investment banks, trust companies. Commercial banks fall into two groups, 'clearing' and 'secondary' banks. In common with other commercial institutions, they operate by acting as financial intermediaries, borrowing money in order to re-lend it, which they are able to do profitably because of their specialised knowledge of financial markets.

The leading industries in the district are metallurgy together with the raw material extraction, machine building, fuel and energy industry. Military industry occupies an important place in the economy of the district. Chemical, woodworking, light and food industries are also highly developed.

Metallurgical industry is one of the oldest in the region. Major metalworking enterprises are Magnitogorsk Iron and Steel Works, Nizhniy Tagil Iron and Steel Works and Chelyabinsk Tube Rolling Plant. There are also heavy transport, chemical engineering plants and military industrial enterprises in the region.

The region occupies a leading place in the national economy. The Ural Federal District surpasses all the other districts in export volume. Being one of the most populated areas of Russia, the Ural economic region has a large Gross Domestic Product. The GDP per capita is above the national average.

Ekaterinburg is one of major business centres of Russia. More and more foreign companies are successfully operating representative offices and joint ventures here. Its unique geographical position on the border of Europe and Asia together with favourable transport situation offer broad opportunities for assuming the role of an important centre of cooperation between East and West.

Задание 1. Чтение и перевод оригинального текста (за 1 академ. час с использованием словаря)

Most teenagers in Britain receive pocket money from their parents. A report by the Bank of Scotland interviewed over 1,000 young people in Britain and found that 77 per cent get pocket money. They might have to do chores to get their pocket money, helping at home with tasks like cleaning, cooking, washing up, taking out the rubbish and ironing. Different families give different amounts and the average for eight-to fifteen-year-olds in the UK is about £6 a week. Children in Scotland receive more than the national average and Londoners get the most. Teenagers, logically, get more money than younger children. Some fifteen-to nineteen-year-olds receive more than £100 a month. The report found that many children save at least a quarter of their weekly pocket money and that more boys than girls save their money. 'I get £80 a month. I have to buy my own clothes with that too.' Chris, 17, from London 'I get £5 a week. I get it on Saturday after I clean my bedroom.' Charlie, 13, from Edinburgh

Part-time work A part-time job is an option for teenagers who don't have pocket money or who want to earn extra money. About 15 per cent of teenagers have a job. Only children over 13 can work but there are some exceptions, for example, for actors. Popular part-time jobs for teens include babysitting, delivering newspapers to houses, shop work and restaurant or café work. There are strict government laws about children working. They can work a maximum of two hours a day on a school day but not during school hours. At weekends and during school holidays, they can work longer hours. As for wages, the national minimum wage for under-18s is around £4 per hour and it increases every year. The minimum wage is higher if you are older. 'I babysit for my neighbours. Looking after young children in their home when their parents have gone out for the evening is a popular job for teenagers. You get paid for watching children and television all at the same time!' Sam, 16, from Chesterfield 'I work in a greengrocer's shop on Saturday mornings. I get £5 an hour. Not much but it means I can buy new clothes or whatever I want.' Amber 15, from Aberdeen

The official currency of the Unites Kingdom is the poundsterling which is equal to one hundred pence. The British do not use the Euro. Although a few of the big shops will accept Euro, it is rarely used across Britain. 5 English banknotes are issued by the Bank of England. As to coins they are minted also by this state bank. The following coins are in circulation: one penny, two pence, five pence, ten pence, 20 pence, 50 pence, 1 pound, and 2 pounds. The singular of pence is "penny". The symbol for the penny is "p"; hence an amount such as 50p is often pronounced "fifty pee" rather than "fifty pence". There are banknotes of the following denominations: £5, £10, £20, £50 and £100. On the face of English banknotes one can read the denomination given both in figures and in words. The inscription on the face of the banknote reads: I promise to pay the bearer on demand the sum of... And then there are two signatures. The first signature is that of the person authorized by the Government and the Bank of England. The second signature is that of the Chief Cashier. At different periods of time and in different parts of the world many different commodities have served as money. These commodities were: cattle, sheep, furs, leather, fish, tobacco, tea, salt, shells etc. The experts underline that to serve effectively as money; a commodity should be fairly durable, easily divisible, and portable. None of the above-mentioned commodities possessed all these qualities, and in time they were superseded by precious metals. First they were superseded by silver and later by gold. When a payment was made the metal was first weighed out. The next stage was the cutting of the metal into pieces of definite weight and so coins came into use. Paper money first came into use in the form of receipts given by goldsmiths in exchange for deposits of silver and gold coins. After goldsmiths became bankers their receipts became banknotes. That's how the first banknotes came into existence. At first coins were worth their face value as metal. But later token coins of limited value as legal tender were issued. Now smaller denomination coins are made from bronze and are often referred to as coppers. Bigger denomination coins are made from cupronickel and are usually called silver.

Money is one of the most important inventions of humankind. Without it a complex, modern economy based on the division of labor, and the exchange of goods and services, would be impossible. When you buy a candy bar, you may pay for it with a coin or paper note. The storekeeper knows that you will eat candy, and that he never will be able to get it back from you. He also knows that he can eat neither the coin nor the note you gave him. Why does he accept the coin or note in trade for candy? It is because the coin is money. At first sight answering the question what money is seems obvious; the man or woman in the street would agree on coins and bank notes, but would they accept them from any country? What about checks? They would probably be less willing to accept them than their country's coins and notes. What about credit cards and gold? The gold standard belongs to history but even today many rich people in different parts of the world rather keep some of their wealth in the form of gold than in official, inflation-prone currencies. The attractiveness of gold, from aesthetic point of view, and its resistance to corrosion are two of the properties which led to its use for monetary transactions years. In complete contrast, a form of money with virtually no tangible properties – electronic money – seems to gain in popularity

It is unlikely the New York City area economy will be $550 million richer. That's the economic benefit for the city hosting a Super Bowl, as estimated by the NY/NJ Super Bowl Host Committee. The problem is that calculating the additional spending accumulated from a one-time economic event is difficult. Two considerations often overlooked are the substitution effect and the crowding-out impact, say economists.

First, part of the money going to Super Bowl tickets and related events would have been spent anyway in the New York area, whether for theater tickets or a good restaurant meal. In addition, the same fans who will order pizza and Buffalo wings for the game would have ordered pizza and wings anyway on a cold Sunday night.

Second, the arrival of Super Bowl fans pushes out other consumers who would have visited New York. Some tourists may avoid the higher costs and crowds associated with the Big Game. The good news for the New York New Jersey area: This crowding-out occurs less in cold-weather cities than in warm-weather areas since tourism in places like New York usually slows during the winter.

Past research done by Robert Baade, a sports economist at Lake Forest College in Illinois, shows that when substitution and crowding-out plus other factors are considered, the actual benefit is about one-tenth the estimate. A gain of $60 million may sound huge, until you consider that, according to a report from the U.S. Conference of Mayors, the New York area has a $1.4 trillion economy. Smaller host cities such as Detroit and Indianapolis probably see a bigger economic rise.

The Bank of Russia has a vertically integrated centralized structure, comprising the central office, territorial institutions, the cash processing centre (CPC), and other organizations. The National Financial Council operates through the Bank of Russia, while the bank's central office includes a board of directors and a chairperson. The Bank of Russia's territorial institutions are autonomous and perform some of the functions of the Bank of Russia across Russia's regions. The regional territorial institutions are based in economic regions and cover several constituent entities of Russia. They comprise the main departments in the regions, territories, and autonomous districts of Russia, in Moscow and St. Petersburg, and national banks in the republics of the Russian Federation. The main departments take part in the implementation of the state monetary and credit policy, ensuring the banking system's development and strengthening; the efficiency and continuous operation of the settlements system; the regulation and supervision of activities of credit institutions in the securities market; the foreign exchange control; the analysis of the state of the economy and its development prospects, as well as the analysis of regional financial markets. A territorial institution has no legal status and is empowered with authority in accordance with the Bank of Russia's regulation and statutory acts. Cash processing centers (CPCs) are structural units of territorial institutions.

Quality—as it relates to the production of goods and services—is defined as being free of deficiencies. Quality matters because fixing, replacing, or redesigning deficient products is costly. For most companies, the costs of poor quality can amount to 20 percent of sales revenue, if not more. Some typical costs of poor quality include downtime, repair costs, rework, and employee turnover. Poor quality can also result in lost sales and a tarnished image. Facebook experienced a quality crisis when users were confused and upset about its implementation of new privacy settings that created chaos and dissatisfaction.

One process that companies use to ensure that they produce high-quality products from the start is benchmarking—determining how well other companies perform business functions or tasks. In other words, benchmarking is the process of determining other firms' standards and best practices. Automobile companies routinely purchase each other's cars and then take them completely apart to examine and compare the design, components, and materials used to make even the smallest part. They then make improvements to match or exceed the quality found in their competitors' cars. Companies may use many different benchmarks, depending on their objectives. For instance, some organizations that want to make more money may compare their operating profits or expenses to those of other firms. Retailers concerned with productivity may want to benchmark sales per square foot. It's important when benchmarking for a firm to establish what it wants to accomplish, what it wants to measure, and which company can provide the most useful benchmarking information. A firm might choose a direct competitor for benchmarking, or it might select a company in an entirely different industry—but one that has processes the firm wants to study and emulate.

Alfa-Bank is one of the first non-governmental credit institutions. The Bank was founded in 1991. Its creator is Mikhail Fridman, a prominent Russian businessman. Alpha Bank was initially designed as a financial institution, servicing the financial interests of one group. However, in future the Bank grew, expanded the scope of its activities and became a full-fledged and even the best classic universal bank. The ownership structure of Alfa-Bank, to a certain extent, is not transparent. In fact, the bank is owned by OAO AB holding company, which, in turn, is the property of ABH Financial Ltd., registered in Luxembourg. This credit organization often defends not only its interests, but the whole financial industry as a whole. Today "Alfa-Bank" is a universal commercial bank, serving more than 82 companies and almost 10 million individuals. It has its structural units in a number of countries. From the point of view of the investors, interested in the following services of Alfa-Bank are deposits, brokerage services on the Russian equity market, as well as services on the Forex market. In addition, this credit organization works with precious metals. Online reviews of Alpha Bank mostly favorable customers find it convenient, that the credit organization truly universal. It offers a virtually the entire range of possible services. At the same time, online comments can be found. The Bank almost always comes quite tough in its own interests.

Marketers measure brand loyalty in three stages: brand recognition, brand preference, and brand insistence. Brand recognition is brand acceptance strong enough that the consumer is aware of the brand, but not strong enough to cause a preference over other brands. A consumer might have heard of L'Oréal hair care products, for instance, without necessarily preferring them to Redken.

Advertising, free samples, and discount coupons are among the most common ways to increase brand recognition. Brand preference occurs when a consumer chooses one firm's brand over a competitor's. At this stage, the consumer usually relies on previous experience in selecting the product. Furniture and other home furnishings fall into this category.

A shopper who purchased an IKEA dining room table and chairs and was satisfied with them is likely to return to purchase a bedroom set. While there, this shopper might pick up a set of mixing bowls for the kitchen or a lamp for the family room—because he or she knows and likes the IKEA brand. Brand insistence is the ultimate degree of brand loyalty, in which the consumer will look for it at another outlet, special-order it from a dealer, order by mail, or search the Internet. Shoppers who insist on IKEA products for their homes may drive an hour or two—making a day excursion of the venture—to visit an IKEA store. The combination of value for the money and the concept of IKEA as a shopping destination have given the brand a unique allure for shoppers.

Brand-building strategies were once limited to the consumer realm, but now they are becoming more important for B2B brands as well. Intel, Xerox, IBM, and service providers such as Krystal Klean and Cisco are among the suppliers who have built brand names among business customers.

Since its foundation, the bank focused on providing services to people. Moreover, during the reign of Nicholas I acted even restrictions: the minimum contribution was only 50 kopeks, maximum —300 rubles, and make them available for amounts not exceeding 10 times. The idea was a success: 71 client on opening day the 1st of March 1842 turned into 473 thousand contributors to the 1911. In 1918 this credit organization was nationalized. Later the company worked under the brand State labour savings. Its current name bank received in 1991 after the privatization. Formally, the "Sberbank of Russia" was established on the 22nd of March 1991. Sberbank of the USSR ceased to exist in January 1992. 50 per cent of shares are traded publicly on the market, including the stock exchange. At the same time, "Sberbank" owns a number of businesses, turned into a kind of holding company with State participation. Among the most important assets of Sberbank can be mentioned the financial sector, "Sberbank investment LTD.", "Sberbank Capital LLC, LLC «asset management company «Sberbank»». Задание 1. Чтение и перевод оригинального текста (за 1 академ. час с использованием словаря)

Before money, people could not buy and sell. There was trade; but it had to be two-way trade: people exchanged goods. For example, they exchanged food for clothes. With money, buying and selling became two things that could happen at different times and with different people. A person could sell food to somebody on one day and get money for it; a week later, he or she could use the money to buy clothes from a third person. There have been metal coins for thousands of years. Some of the earlier coins were used in Turkey, and they were made of gold and silver. But this caused problems. People used to take very small bits of metal from each coin. Each coin was then a bit smaller, so people wanted more coins for their goods, and prices went up. Metal coins were used by the Greeks thousands of years ago. The Greek drachma was made of silver. For hundreds of years, it was the most common kind of money for trade in Europe and parts of Asia. The Greeks even put drachma into the mouths of dead people: they believed the money would pay for their journey to the next world. The Romans also used silver and gold coins. But the emperor Nero decided to put less gold and silver into the coins in order to make money for himself. After that, nobody wanted to use the coins, and this had a very bad effect on the Roman economy. The world had learned a lesson: money only works if people believe in its value. Coins can be heavy. (For example, the people of Yap, an island in the Pacific, use stone coins; the biggest were about four meters across).

In 1950, the first credit card was made. It was the Diners Club card, and it could only be used in 200 restaurants in New York. Today, almost all shops, hotels and restaurants in the world take credit cards, so people do not have to carry a lot of coins and notes with them when they travel. As with anything there are advantages and disadvantages to using credit cards.

Advantages:

Immediate Access: Need a new set of tires? Credit can help with an expensive, unexpected emergency and give you the flexibility to pay it over time.

Security: Lose cash, and it's gone. Lose a credit card, and it can be cancelled. Also, if you report a lost or stolen card promptly, you're protected against its unauthorized use.

Record Keeping: Your credit card statement is an itemized list of your monthly expenditures, which can be helpful when it comes to budgeting.

Convenience: Credit cards are accepted at more places than checks, and they're generally faster to use.

Rewards: Using a credit card with a rewards program may earn you benefits like free travel.

Disadvantages: The main disadvantage to credit card usage is its cost to you in interest and fees. Wise use of credit means understanding those costs and acting accordingly.

Keep track of your spending to ensure that you can repay your credit card bill in full when it comes due each month.

Have you ever considered starting your own business? Can you imagine making a lot of money or being an entrepreneur? Or maybe it is not worth taking the risk? If you start your own business, you will maybe borrow money from friends or family, or even from a bank. If you choose to borrow from a bank, you should arrange to see a bank manager to discuss the terms of a loan. But, you can expect to have a lot of work. If you arrange a meeting with the bank, you will have to think over your idea and prepare all your figures. The bank will certainly want to see a business plan. You will have to prepare a lot of information. You will have to prepare a cash flow forecast which shows how much money you expect to make in the first three years, plus how many customers you hope to win. You will also have to decide what kind of security you want to offer the bank. If the bank agrees to give you a loan, your problems don't stop there because the bank will often require you to update them on your progress. The business plan allows them to see if you are meeting your forecasts and, if you fail, they may want to have the money back. Of course, if you agree to borrow the money, you will have to repay the loan plus interest. That can be the hardest part

This short term financial product is the most common form of finance. It is usual for a bank to permit a certain level of overdraft when a current account is opened. If a business wants a larger overdraft, it has to negotiate one, for which it may be charged an arrangement fee. If it fails to do this and tries to overdraw more than allowed, the bank may refuse to release the money and any cheques written will bounce. The business will then not be able to make its payments, which could lead it to have a poor reputation as a customer. Interest on an overdraft is only paid on the amount actually overdrawn. An overdraft is therefore a safety net for a business; it should not be used for the purchase of capital items such as computers or photocopiers. Advantages: This form of interest is very flexible. It is there but if you have enough money in your account then you don't have to use it. Disadvantages: The interest rate is variable, this means that if the cost of borrowing in the country increases, the bank can increase the interest rate of this form of finance. This means uncertainty for this business which makes it hard for them to plan. The bank can demand full repayment of this source of finance in 24 hours. This could force a business into liquidation.

Investing thousands of pounds in the recruitment and training of each new graduate recruit may be just the beginning. Choosing the wrong candidate may leave an organization paying for years to come. Few companies will escape all of the following failures: people who panic at the first sign of stress; those with long impressive qualifications list who seem incapable of learning; people who avoid fulfilling their duties; unstable people and people late discovered to be thieves. Less dramatic, but just as much a problem, is the person who simply does not come up to the expectations, who is not reliable, who never becomes "high-flyer" or even a usual performer. The first point you should remember at the recruitment stage is that people do not change. Intelligence levels decline modestly, but change little over their working life. The same is true of abilities, such as learning languages and handling numbers.

Most people like to think that personality can change – especially such negative features as impulsiveness, low esteem or lack of emotional warmth. But data collected over 50 years give a clear message: still the same stable figures after all these years. Skills can be improved, and new ones introduced but at rather different rates.

People can be sent onto training courses, lectures, or experimental weekends. But there is a cost to all of this, which may be much higher than the price of the course. Better to select for what you actually see rather than attempt to change it.

Bob, USA Do we need the Federal Reserve in the USA? Why should we pay taxes to have another big bank?

Katia, German National Bank

Central or national banks help both the government and the other banks in the country. The basic function of a central or national bank is maintaining price stability by using a variety of methods. In many cases, the role of a central bank is encouraging financial stability. Sometimes a central bank has a monitoring role which may involve supervising the commercial banks. It often holds reserves for the other banks. In some countries the central bank controls the supply of money by deciding how much money other banks have to hold as reserve's. In many countries the central bank issues and prints the currency. Some also manage the exchange rate of a country's currency.

Joelle, France What Is the purpose of the European Central Bank?

Marie, consultant for the ECB, Belgium

The ECB is very important to the euro-zone. Its main function is keeping prices stable in the euro-zone and inflation just under two percent. The ECB is the central bank for the euro, the common currency in the European Union euro-zone member states. The first task of the ECB is deciding on and implementing monetary policy. This includes setting the interest rates for banks in the euro-zone. Then the banks decide how much interest to charge or pay customers for their business. It is also responsible for carrying out foreign exchange. Holding and managing the official foreign reserves of the euro area countries is a very important job for the ECB. In addition, the ECB has to regulate the payment systems within the eurozone and make sure that it works without problems. Keeping the countries within the euro-zone economically stable is a very important function of the ECB.

БИЛЕТ № 19

Who is more in debt: men or women?

A recent study by the Debt Foundation shows that it is young men who have the biggest debts on their credit cards, but it is young women who have the biggest problems with paying the debt. Why the difference? Many people think that women are just bad at managing money. They cannot stop buying new shoes, handbags, or clothes when they see them, and so they borrow money on store cards that you can get from big shops. But the results of the survey show this is simply not true. Young men, it seems, use store cards as much as women. Sometimes, they are worse. Also, they save less money than women from their salaries. They open fewer saving accounts than women and take bigger risks with their finance, investing in things like shares. Young men are also less likely to have insurance on their homes and possessions. The real reason women can't pay is that women usually have debts on basic things for the home like rent and services simply because they are poorer and often have to support children or older parents on low incomes. The study shows that today at the age of 24 most women earn 15% less than men and have more responsibilities with family and children. These are the real causes of debt problems. But the worst news from the survey is that, because of their poverty, women often cannot go to big banks to borrow money. They have to use other service companies that charge the highest rates of interest. So, they suffer more and pay more in interest because their family needs are more desperate. The result is that there are more women who have their gas or electricity turned off for non payment.

In many countries heart disease kills a lot of women and even more men. There are five causes of heart disease: bad diet, heart disease in the family, not enough exercise, smoking, stress. The most important cause, however, is stress. But what is stress? Stress is everywhere in our daily life. The main causes of stress are death, marriage, money, moving house, taking exams and changing jobs. We often feel stress when something is wrong in our life, but we cannot change it. Some people have to do what they don't like doing every day! This is a stressful situation. Stress on the job costs American companies as much as $ 150 billion a year in lower productivity, employee sick leave, and higher medical costs. Stress is a prevalent and costly problem in today's workplace. Three quarters of the office workers today say they suffer from stress at work. About one-third of workers report high levels of stress. One-quarter of employees view their jobs as the number one stressor in their lives. Three-quarters of employees believe the worker has more on-the-job stress than a generation ago. Evidence also suggests that stress is the major cause of turnover in organizations. The Kenexa Research Institute released a global survey of almost 30,000 workers which showed that females suffered more workplace stress than their male counterparts. According to the survey, women's stress level were 10% higher for those in supervisory positions, 8% higher stress in service and production jobs than men, and 6% higher in middle and upper management than men in the same position.

Central banks. These are usually owned and operated by governments and their most significant functions are in controlling the currency and in implementing monetary policy. They do not generally trade with individuals. A country's minimum interest rate is usually fixed by the central bank. This is the discount rate, at which the central bank makes secured loans to commercial banks. Banks lend to blue chip borrowers (very safe large companies) at the base rate or the prime rate; all other borrowers pay more, depending on their credit standing (or creditworthiness). Borrowers can usually get a lower interest rate if the loan is secured or guaranteed by some kind of asset, known as collateral.

Commercial banks. Commercial banks or retail banks are businesses that trade in money. They receive and hold deposits, pay money according to customers' instructions, lend money, offer investment advice, exchange foreign currencies, and so on. When lending money, bankers have to find a balance between yield and risk, and between liquidity and different maturities. These are the profit motivated banks involved in high-street banking activities. In the UK, this means the London clearing banks and the Scottish and Northern Irish banks. Many foreign commercial banks now have offices in the UK but they are usually concerned with major commercial types of lending. UK banks also operate extensively overseas; the Barclays Group, for example, operates in more than 75 countries.

Banks and their functions. Types of bank. When we look around the UK and the world, we discover many different types of bank. Some of the differences may be attributable to legislation, such as the Glass – Steagall Act of 1934 in the USA, which forbids commercial banks from being investment banks or stockbroking firms. Similarly in the USA restrictions on the number of branches a bank may have has resulted in the unit banking system with no fewer than 14 500 separate banks. In the UK, on the other hand, commercial banking is dominated by the ‘big four’ which, between them, have over 11 000 branches. In general, we might divide banks by the type of business they undertake. Primary banks are those, which are mainly concerned with the transmission of money, i.e. clearing cheques, paying standing orders and so on. This obviously includes the high street banks such as Barclays and Lloyds; less obviously it also includes the discount houses (see below). Secondary banks are those, which are mainly involved in dealing with other financial intermediaries and providing 121 services other than the transmission of money. A good example is the merchant banks.

Financial intermediaries.

All the institutions involved in the monetary sector of the economy, the money markets and the capital market in particular, may be termed financial intermediaries. These are the institutions which channel funds from lenders to borrowers, i.e. transform short-term deposits into long-term loans. Among the institutions, which are termed financial intermediaries, are banks, 120 building societies, finance houses (hire purchase companies), insurance companies, pension funds and investment trusts. It is usual to distinguish between the banking sector and the other non-bank financial institutions. The reason for this is because the liabilities of banks form part of the money supply whereas those of the other institutions usually do not. It is important to realize that financial intermediaries are more than go-betweens. They do not just act like employment agencies, placing one lot of people in touch with another – other more important functions are involved, namely maturity transformation and risk transformation. What is the difference between maturity transformation and risk transformation? To illustrate this let us take an example. People deposit money in their current accounts, which the bank promises to repay on demand – it then lends the money to a customer for, say, three years. Maturity transformation has taken place. But if you were to lend your money directly to a friend to buy a new car you would be taking a great risk. However, by taking many such risks and by knowledge of its business the bank greatly reduces the risk. This is risk transformation. These processes are achieved through the bank's correct structuring of its balance sheet.

Задание 1. Чтение и перевод оригинального текста (за 1 академ. час с использованием словаря)

A central bank is also responsible for giving the government general advice on the monetary system. It publishes large quantities of statistical information with studies of various sectors of the economy. Hence, instead of taking deposits and making loans as normal banks do, every country's central bank watches economic data carefully and adjust the money supply by increasing or decreasing the amount of currency in circulation in an effort to keep the economy headed in the right direction. 134 Since most "money" is actually nothing more than a savings or checking account at a local bank, the most effective way for a central bank to control the economy is to increase or decrease bank lending and bank deposits. When banks have money to lend to their customers, the economy grows. And vice versa, when the banks are forced to cut back lending, the economy slows. And perhaps the most dramatic way of increasing or decreasing the money supply is through open market operations, where a central bank buys or sells large amounts of securities, such as government treasury bonds, in the open market. By buying a large block of bonds, from a bank or a securities house for example, the central bank pumps money into the economy because it uses funds that previously were not part of the money supply.

Задание 1. Чтение и перевод оригинального текста (за 1 академ. час с использованием словаря)

The central banking system is a major sector of any modern monetary system. This institution has its long history and is of great importance both to the fiscal and monetary policy of the national government and the functioning of the private sector. Presently every country in the world has a central bank, the oldest in the world being that of Sweden which was established in 1668. The bank of England was founded in 1694, while in the USA the Federal Reserve did not come into existence until 1913. The bank of Russia was founded in 1990, but traced its history to the State Bank of the Russian Empire, which in its turn was the main bank of the Russian Empire from 1860 to 1917.

The main function of a central bank is the implementation of the governmental monetary policy. There are some tools to realize the policy:

- fix the minimum interest rate and control its fluctuations;
- act as banker's bank and lender of last resort to commercial banks with liquidity problems;
- issue national currency;
- influence exchange rate by intervening in foreign exchange markets;
- act as government's banker monitoring all foreign exchange transactions.
